

pumping the first component within the second component at a die head location of a co-extruder in order to avoid significant heat processing of the first component, thereby forming one dual component pet or animal food extrudate, wherein the second component completely surrounds the cream-textured matrix of the first component.

68. The dual texture food product of claim 67, wherein the food product is for a dog.

69. The dual texture food product of claim 67, wherein the food product is for a cat.

* * * * *